July 26, 2010

Bec Goodman worked for us during the summer of 2010, as a counselor, both in the cabin and in program, at our camp for girls. Bec was involved in many facets of camp life. She consistently displayed a willingness to participate to the fullest extent with a happy demeanor. She assumed all her responsibilities in a mature, effective manner and succeeded in all her endeavors. As a first year counselor, Bec proved herself to be capable and a positive role model for other counselors.

Bec had a shared responsibility with another counselor for a cabin of 8/9 girls. As the counselor, she was responsible for their orientation to camp, organization of their program activity schedule, daily routine/chores and general well being. The girls enjoyed having Bec as their counselor. Bec maintained order in the cabin and helped the girls gain enjoyment from the camp experience. She was very caring and definitely had the girls' interest and well being at the forefront of her thoughts and actions.

Bec was a very responsible and enthusiastic director of swimming at our waterfront. She did an excellent job of ensuring the activities happening at the lake were safe and fun. Bec was also very willing to assist in different areas of camp when she was not needed at the waterfront. She always encompassed the camp's philosophy of safety, skill development, and fun in her lessons. Campers flourished under her guidance and were motivated and encouraged in the positive environment created by Bec. Her positive attitude, sense of dedication and enjoyment of her role at camp enabled her to provide her campers with a fun-filled, enriching summer experience.

Camp counseling is an intense job, requiring many skills including patience, understanding, an appreciation and love of children, organizational abilities, a sense of humor, flexibility, adaptability, enormous energy and dedication, "people skills" and a desire to do a good job. Bec joined a group of strangers to become an effective team member helping in any capacity. In the last two summers, she has become a more confident woman who is willing to try new things which she may not have typically tried in the past. Camp is a living community where anything can happen at any given time. The staff who succeed in this environment need to be special people who are giving and sensitive to other's needs. Bec adapted quickly to camp and its multicultural environment. She is a welcome member of the Netimus family. I would hire her again without reservation.

If I can be of any further assistance, please contact me by phone (570) 296-6131 or by e-mail tabz@netimus.com.

Sincerely,

Tabitha Taber – Director, Camp Netimus for Girls
