

To Whom It May Concern:

I have known David Streeter for almost three years. I was hired as the Sr. Practice Manager at the Center for Partnership Medicine at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in September 2008. David was working as an Executive Health Clinician when I began managing the Center. I was immediately struck by David's ability to connect with his patients as well as his willingness to go above what was expected, both for his patients and co-workers.

As I spent more time at the Center, it was also clear that in addition to David's strong clinical skills, he was also very experienced and savvy with computers and computer programming. As the technical needs of the department grew, I created a new position, titled Clinical Informatics Specialist, and promoted David into this position. Among many other things, David was instrumental in creating an internal patient data tracking tool that was used daily by the executive health clinicians and physicians. Even after being promoted, I also appreciated that David was very flexible and continued to support the department with direct patient care when needed.

While I have relocated and no longer work at the Center for Partnership Medicine, I would definitely rehire David if ever given the opportunity! I thoroughly enjoyed working with him for the two years I was at the Center and strongly believe the Center is a better place for David's contributions over the past few years.
